WASHABLE WALLCOVERINGS . . . Are Attractive As Well As Practical

It is no longer necessary to paint most of your walls off white to be in style. With easy-care fabrics on the market, the trend in upholstered furniture is towards lighter and plainer colors, so other parts of the room — like the walls — are perking up. Sofas and comfortable chairs are taking a back seat in decorators' eyes to accessories and interesting rugs and wallcoverings. People who previously had only the bathroom and kitchen wallpapered are choosing paints and strips now for the dining room, bedrooms, and living room.

Newest on the wallpaper scene are handsome phonies which simulate marble, stone, leather, wood and fabric but are far easier to care for than their real counterparts. Many of these wallpapers come with prepasted backing — a boon for do-it-yourselfers. Other types are strippable for those who redecorate often.

Fabric wallcoverings look expensive and often are, but their unique textured appearance makes the cost worthwhile if they last a long time. Make sure, therefore, that the silk or linen is impregnated with plastic to make it washable, and backed with more fabric or paper to make it durable.

Polyvinyl chloride is the most scrubbable of the vinyls, while plastic coating over ordinary wallpaper is the most fragile. The Soap and Detergent Association advises that while all vinyls can be wiped with soap or detergent and water, a homeowner should consider where the covering will be used to determine the degree of durability needed.

If a particular wallpaper pattern has been selected which is not washable, look into wallpaper protective coatings. These are applied with a roller after the wallpaper is installed and make the wall paper completely washable. Check the effect on a small sample of paper first, however, because these coatings will occasionally darken a paper slightly.

Self-adhesive plastic panels and tiles are available that simulate brick, wood, stone or mosaic patterns. These can be cut with scissors to fit the space, and they cover uneven or cracked walls well. Mirror squares, whether plain, smokey or antiqued, make a small area appear larger.

All of the wallcoverings mentioned above are very washable, which is fortunate, because they are too prominent in today's decorating schemes to be stained or soiled.

Food leaders of each E.H. Club are reminded of the leader training meeting for the March program, "Fancy Sandwiches", which will be held on Tuesday, February 13, at 1:30 in the Reseue Squad Building. Each club must have a representative present. Visitors are welcomed.

Oakville Ruritan Club To Sponsor Clean-Up

At its monthly meeting, the Oakville Ruritan Club voted to sponsor and organize a county-wide clean-up campaign. Charles Perkins and Alfred Marsh head the committee charged with organizing the project. Preliminary planning is now underway and is expected to be completed by the club's next scheduled meeting.

Within the next few weeks, officers of all other civic organizations in the county will be contacted by representatives of the Ruritan Club for the purpose of soliciting their participation in the project. Volunteers from the general public are also needed and are urged to contact Club President Roger Davis for information concerning how they may help with the effort.

In sponsoring this campaign, the Club hopes to realize three primary objectives: to survey the county and recommend to the Board of Supervisors those locations offering greatest assessibility to the most people with respect to placement of each of the 100 trash container units now on order by the county; to educate the public with regard to the benefits of a clean community in terms of its effect on local tourism and the drawing of new industry; finally, to organize clean-up crews and related resources for removal of trash from roadside areas and to assist individual owners in disposing of junked autos which spot the county.

This project is urgently needed however, its success is dependent upon the cooperation and participation of the entire community.

Periodic announcements will be made as this campaign progresses.
